

The things I want to accomplish on my journey through film connections is to gather knowledge of the industry and see how it operates. I want film connection to help me discover the director, writer, and producer I have in me. I want to know all the in's and out's of how to make films and the history behind film. Then I want to be able to reach the point in my life in that I am confident I can reach my dreams and become a filmmaker. Other things I want to get out of film connection is how to make a good script or know the fundamentals on making a good script. Lastly, what I want is to find the courage to release the stories I make and work with people that also love film.

Once I make it in the industry I want to make films that stay true to me and tell stories that entertain people and give a visual of that anything can be made and brought to life on film and that there is no limit to imagination. I want the film industry to give me that satisfaction or fullness I have been missing in my life. My final desire from the film industry is to give me the ability to let my stories/imagination out, to move people, be remembered as someone that loved film, changed the industry in a good way, and be remembered years after I pass away.

My first step into making it in the industry is to know everything there is to film and the film industry. Then take the knowledge I have gathered and apply it to my films. I would then start making short films or feature films that have meaning and gets people's attention. I would also write hundreds of scripts and try to get them produced with the help of others who are already in the film industry. Another idea would be to sell my scripts to companies until finally I make it in the industry or at least get my foot in the door.
